Against antisemitism – for reconciliation

Together, Israeli and German young people explore the history of their families and of their peoples. They engage with the origins of antisemitism and its manifestations in the present day.

Since 2005, Philippus-Dienst has been running this program. It grew out of a vision: hand in hand (Hebrew: “Yad b’Yad”) German and Israeli young people walk through Auschwitz. Through this program, we put this vision into practice and experience anew each time how God transforms the young people for the good.
Yad b’Yad is a building block for reconciliation between our peoples and a sustainable program against antisemitism
